NeuroIS Retreat 2020 (June 2-4) will be held in a virtual format

Dear NeuroIS community:

The NeuroIS Retreat 2020 organizing team wishes to announce its decision to change this year's format from physical face-to-face to virtual due to the coronavirus pandemic.

The CDC (Centers for Disease Control and Prevention, USA) recently recommended modifying large events to be virtual if feasible. Changing to a virtual format this year seems better than cancelling. Given the IS sophistication of our community, we are confident that a virtual format will be feasible.

We have assigned the 43 submissions to reviewers, and are expecting to receive their reviews by March 29 and to notify authors on April 1 as planned.

The conference co-chairs Fred D. Davis and René Riedl, the program co-chairs Jan vom Brocke, Pierre-Majorique Léger, and Adriane B. Randolph, and Gernot Müller-Putz, Deputy Scientific Director of the NeuroIS Society, are developing plans for a virtual conference, and will provide updates by email and website (http://www.neurois.org/) as details become available.

In case of questions, please do not hesitate and contact us via info@NeuroIS.org.

Best regards,

Fred D. Davis and René Riedl,
Conference Co-Chairs, on behalf of the organizing team
